OVERVIEW

Graduate study in Spanish has a long tradition at LSU. The M.A. in Hispanic Studies at LSU is an enhanced and redesigned interdisciplinary program that offers three different concentration areas of study: 1) Hispanic Linguistics, 2) Hispanic Literature, and 3) Hispanic Cultural Studies. Each one of these areas is offered with both the thesis and the non-thesis options.

Each one of the three concentration areas is strategically structured to help guide the student in selecting his/her courses and designing his/her curriculum/research agenda. This new format is intended to facilitate defining the parameters for the development of the study lists for the comprehensive exam option as well as research skills and methodology for the thesis-option.

The program is supported by a faculty unit that is strong in interdisciplinary approaches to the study of language, literature, and culture. Affiliated faculty members from other departments complement the program with their expertise related to Hispanic issues in anthropology, geography, history, political science, and international studies.

PURPOSE OF THE PROGRAM

- To guide students towards the acquisition of fundamental knowledge and skills in Hispanic studies (language, literature, linguistics, civilization, and cultural studies)
- To guide students towards a thorough understanding of the literatures and cultures of Spain and Latin America and in Hispanic Linguistics, and to oversee their specialization in one of the three areas of concentration of Hispanic studies
- To provide students with appropriate tools to work in fields for which demand for knowledge of Spanish and Hispanic culture is constantly increasing, such as diplomacy and international relations, interpretation/translation (for legal, advertising and other purposes), media and textbook editing/publishing, library science, community outreach, etc.
- To provide students with pedagogical tools/teaching experience to teach in secondary schools/community or junior colleges/universities (note: certification from the State is necessary to teach in public schools)
- To prepare students to utilize their skills in Spanish in such other fields that he/she may elect

PART I: GENERAL REQUIREMENTS COURSE

WORK

All students in the program must complete a minimum of 36 credit-hours. Please note: “Satisfaction of the minimum requirements of the Graduate School, as stipulated in [the] catalog, does not relieve graduate students of the responsibility for satisfying any additional requirements deemed appropriate by the graduate faculty of the degree programs in which they are enrolled.” (p. 67)

Students in each concentration must take 6 credit hours in each of the other two concentrations, i.e. each option requires a total of 12 credit hours in the non-concentration areas.

Introductory courses mandatory for each concentration should be taken during the first year of study.

SPAN 4400 (Introduction to Hispanic Cultural Studies) All students must take this course.

SPAN 4603 (Applied Spanish Linguistics) All teaching students must take this course.

SPAN 7990 (Research Methods and Hispanic Criticism) This is a mandatory course for the concentrations on literature and culture studies.

SPAN 7985 (Research Methods in Hispanic Linguistics) This is a mandatory course for the concentration on linguistics.

SPAN 8000-level thesis research hours: There is no specific limit on the number of thesis research hours that a student can take. However, only 6 thesis research hours of credit count towards the master's degree. Students cannot substitute thesis research hours for course work.

Thesis option: Students pursuing the thesis option must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours in course work and 6 credit hours in thesis research. The thesis prospectus must be completed and filed with the graduate advisor before students may take thesis hours. At least 18 credit hours of course work must be at the 7000-level.

Non-thesis option: Students pursuing the non-thesis (or comprehensive exam) option must complete a minimum of 36 credit hours in course work: at least 21 credit hours of course work must be at the 7000-level.

Balanced course offerings should be maintained every semester in the three concentration areas of the program. This should be monitored closely by the Director of the program as well as by the Graduate Advisor. Of the three courses taken each semester at least two should be Spanish courses offered by the Department of Foreign Languages. Over the course of the program students may take a maximum of two courses outside the Spanish section (non-SPAN rubric); that is, courses previously approved by the Spanish professorial rank faculty that are included in the M.A. in Hispanic Studies course list (see pp. 8-11 of this handbook) and that are offered only by affiliated Hispanic Studies Faculty. Only courses that fit these criteria will count for credit toward the M.A. in Hispanic Studies.

THE M.A. EXAMINATION

Non-thesis Option

A written comprehensive examination is administered in the last semester of course work, which is normally the fourth semester for a full-time student. It will focus on the concentration area and it will be prepared by the three-member advisory committee [see page 5]. Each member will prepare questions that will be answered at a particular time and place designated by the professor or turned in at a time and place specified for that purpose. The student will have 8 hours to complete the exam: the concentration area will constitute the basis for two thirds of the exam. The remaining portion of the exam will be devoted to the two other areas. At the discretion of the committee, an oral examination may be scheduled for discussion of the answers to the written examination. If the student does not pass the examination the committee may vote to allow the student to retake the examination one time.

Thesis Option

The final examination for the thesis option is an oral defense of the thesis and must be scheduled by the major professor along with the graduate student. If the student does not pass the examination the committee may vote to allow the student one more opportunity to present the defense.

ADVISING

Each student will meet with the Graduate Advisor during the registration period to go over the plan of study form or graduate student record [see page 11] to make sure that courses that are to be taken are the appropriate ones for their concentration area. This form will be signed by both the graduate student and the Graduate Advisor after each meeting and a copy of it will be provided to the student.

By the middle of the second semester the student should decide upon a concentration and select a major professor. The major professor assists the student in identifying two other professors to serve on the advisory committee by no later than the beginning of the third semester. At least one member of the advisory committee must be a professor of Spanish. Two professors must be from the student's area of concentration, and a third one from one of the two other areas. The advisory committee guides the student as to whether to pursue the thesis or non-thesis option. Once this decision has been made, the committee composition may change to accommodate the thesis topic. The student must inform the Graduate Advisor of the selection of a major professor to facilitate coordination of document preparation and reports to the Graduate School.

Thesis option: The advisory committee works with the student to develop a workable plan for the thesis, and the major professor guides the writing of the thesis prospectus along with the thesis. The thesis prospectus should be a minimum of 5 double-spaced pages long. It should include an introduction to the topic, the research question(s) the student intends to pursue, a concise description of the intended methodology, and a preliminary result. It should also contain a significant initial bibliography for the project. By the beginning of the third semester the student should file a thesis prospectus with the Graduate Advisor. The advisory committee administers the oral defense of the thesis.

Non-thesis option: By the beginning of the third semester of study the advisory committee prepares a reading list of a minimum of 35 texts that reflect the interests that guide the course selections for the concentration. The list may include texts read in courses as well as theoretical and critical works considered essential for the concentration. The reading list and course work are the basis for the final examination.

THESIS DIRECTORS /CHAIRS OF STUDENT COMMITTEES

Each thesis director or committee chair should meet periodically with the student in order to closely work with him/her and monitor his/her progress.

Each thesis director or chairs of the student committees should meet periodically with the Graduate Advisor in order to keep him/her abreast of the student's progress. Thesis directors and chairs of student committees are responsible for keeping the Graduate Advisor up-to-date regarding any concern/issue raised by the student(s).

SHARED RESPONSIBILITY

It is the student's responsibility to meet all requirements of the Graduate School and of the degree program and to file paperwork by the deadlines announced by the Graduate School. The student should have a copy of the Graduate Bulletin and consult it frequently. Chairs of examining committees are responsible for all details of administering exams. The Graduate Advisor, together with the chair of the examining committee, is responsible for reporting exam results to the Graduate School.

OTHER DUTIES OF THE GRADUATE ADVISOR ALONG WITH THE SPANISH FACULTY

Besides the workshop with the language coordinator and a session with the Graduate Advisor that takes place during the orientation week before classes begin each semester, the Graduate Advisor will hold informational sessions/meetings with graduate students every semester to address concerns that they may have within the department so as to give them a voice regarding what they would like to see implemented to better their overall experience as graduate students. Special attention will be paid to those students graduating within the following two semesters regarding paperwork to be sent to Graduate School, deadlines, etc.

The Spanish section will hold at least one workshop per semester based on the program's objective and the student's interests or needs.

The Graduate Studies Committee will periodically update the website with accurate, full information on our degree.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIPS

Graduate Assistantships are offered to qualified full-time graduate students for a maximum of two years (full-time graduate students normally complete the program in two years.) Be aware that the M.A. in Hispanic Studies must be completed within five years of entrance into the degree program.

The Graduate Assistantship requires an average of 20 hours of service per week. First year students fulfill this requirement by partaking in a series of classroom related activities under the mentorship of a Spanish language instructor. These activities, inside and outside the classroom, are specifically designed to prepare students to teach in the second year. After completing 18 credit hours, students begin a teaching assistantship during which they teach one 4-credit Spanish language course per semester. Teaching Assistants are solely responsible for all aspects of teaching the course, but are given ample training both prior to and during the academic year to facilitate their teaching. Many of the materials (e.g., course syllabus, quizzes, writing and speaking activities, exams) are provided for each TA.

YEARLY REVIEW

The Executive Committee will meet in mid-March each year to evaluate students based upon reports from professors. Upon review, the committee will recommend renewal or non-renewal of assistantships for continuing students.

THE EXIT INTERVIEW

The Graduate Advisor schedules an interview with each graduating student soon after results of the M.A. comprehensive examination/thesis are announced. The Graduate Advisor and the student complete the exit interview form. The forms are then reviewed by the Executive Committee as part of the ongoing review of the M.A. program. Results and recommendations are to be reported to the entire Spanish graduate faculty.

SUMMARIZING

In order to earn an M.A. in Hispanic Studies all students must:

1. Form and work with advisory committees (see page 5)
2. Complete a minimum of 36 credit hours (see page 3, 4)
3. Prove mastery of a concentration by passing a comprehensive exam or by writing and defending a thesis (see page 4)
